Good morning! It's Venice from 751 and I'm here this Motivational Monday on behalf of the S.E.A.L Team.

Did you know that today, a solar eclipse will be visible across North America? A solar eclipse occurs when the Moon passes between Earth and the Sun, obscuring the view of the Sun from Earth. Good places to watch it are in Texas and include Kerrville, Lampasas, and Radar Base. However, remember not to look directly at the sun during the eclipse without protection, as it could cause permanent eye damage. This event can turn an ordinary day into an extraordinary adventure, inviting people from all walks of life to pause, look up, and share a celestial wonder. In this brief pause we are reminded that life is beautiful and that we should take the time to appreciate it because you know it will soon be gone in the blink of an eye.

Thanks for listening have a Moments to Cherish Monday 😊
