Rise and shine, I.S.201! This is William Chen of class 852 speaking to you for today's Motivational Monday on behalf of the S.E.A.L Team!

This week is National Education Week, a week to acknowledge all the factors in our school environment. Starting the week before Thanksgiving, National Education Week isn't only to mention the importance of learning, but to appreciate those who contribute to it. Whether you like it or not, you can probably agree that school is quite crucial in our lives and recognizing those who help make it a haven for learning are just as important. Whether it's our teachers, deans, assistant principals, or any other administrators at our school, they all help make our school a better place in some shape or form. Not only that, National Education Week is also to cherish and understand the gift of our knowledge. Because we can learn and discover new information, we are opened to many more lifelong opportunities that help us develop our career.

Like Marie Curie, today's affirmation is: "I stay humble, no matter how much I accomplish."

Thanks for listening and have a Mission to Learn Monday!
